

Panel: “SRR and transdisciplinary practices while researching in the Social and Humanity Sciences; methodological proposals, contributes and applications”

The reliability or the usefulness of the research in the Social and Humanity Sciences, as well as its articulation with other areas, has been increasingly configuring itself as a focal point for discussion and new proposals which are crucial within the SHS themselves. This panel intends to discuss these two matters: the Socially responsible research (SRR) and the practices and opportunities that arise from the necessary adoption of logics of transdisciplinary work in SHS.
